GOULD 22-SO PARIS 23

In a close hard fought battle Gould Academy defeated South Paris for the second time, this one 22-23. It was a poorly played game with both teams seemingly off form. Libby with 10 points, led the locals while H. Card gathered 11 to be high point man for the night.

In preliminary game the local underdogs came through with another easy win 30-11. The J V's have won seven games and lost only to Fryeburg and that by a one point margin.

FEATURE BASKETBALL
DOUBLEHEADER WEDNESDAY

The Gould Academy Varsity and Vets teams will meet similar teams from Fryeburg Academy here on Wednesday at 7:15 and 8:30. This should be the feature attraction of the year for fans in this vicinity.

The preliminary game will be the Vets' tussle. Not much is known here about the visiting aggregation but local fans are behind the Gould Vets who have lost only to the Berlin Vets this season by a 55-64 score at Berlin. Coach Bow-day will probably start Higgins and Thurber at the forward posts with Moore due for plenty of action.

Lincoln or Boutwell will start at center while Red Connors and Blackadar should get the nod for the guard positions.

In the feature event, Coach Anderson's aggregation will be meeting the only Maine team to have defeated them this year. The Fryeburg quint handed the local team a 44-40 set-back early in January.

And since then the "Blue and Gold" have gone on to win four straight victories. The Gould outfit knows its troubles in trying to stop Churchill, Fryeburg's elongated center, and Alexander their speedy forward who garnered 19 points against them in the first game.

The home team will be in there fighting, however, to try to even up the count.

The starting line ups for the two teams will probably be as follows:

GOULD	Fryeburg
Jack Libby, lf	Alexander, lf
Wayne Allen, lf	Barnes, rf
Jerry Davis, c	Churchill, c
Dave Foster, lg	Eastman, lg
Louis Wood, rg	Ward, rg

LEGION TO OBSERVE PAST
COMMANDERS' NIGHT

The George A. Mundt Post, No. 81, American Legion will hold Past Commanders' Night, Feb. 11 at 8 o'clock. All Past Commanders are asked to attend. John Compass was named to make arrangements for this affair. A buffet supper will be served after the meeting.

Invited guests include County Commander Owen Harding, Dixfield; County Welfare Officer Mac Starbird, Dixfield; Chief de Camp Roland Haggitt, Vulture 613, Norway; Maine State Placement Officer, H. Ashton, Rumford; and Mr. Skinner of the Veterans Administration, Rumford.

The Gould Academy quintet really clicked here last Friday as they put on a dazzling show of passing and shooting to go out in front 24 to 13 at the half. The "Huskies" came through with their best performance of the year as they held Norway's big team in check throughout the game. Wayne Allen and Jerry Davis were the scorers for the winners with 19 and 20 points each; but the fine work of Wood, Foster, Libby, and Parsons were important features of the game.

M. Wiley of Norway was the games high scorer as he connected for 23 points, but his team mates could gather only five other baskets between them.

In the preliminary game the Gould Junior Varsity with Bennett, Smith, Hall, Hamilton, and Wright being the brunt of the playing team through with a convincing 43 to 27 victory over the visitors.

History Holds Key to Cheap Homes

Put in New Claim for Merits Of Rammed Earth Buildings

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU News Service, 1616 Eye Street N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Is there a solution of the low-cost housing problem as simple as the dirt under our feet? Have we been overlooking a bet, which Pliny said the Romans were overlooking, in the first century A. D. and to which most people have shut their eyes ever since?

Baukhage

Anthony F. Merrill says so and so does a convincing job of proving the contention in his book "The Rammed Earth House," which I have just read. It seems incredible!

It didn't seem incredible to Pliny who heatedly proclaimed that the Romans had, in Africa and Spain, "walls of earth."

They are "moulded rather than built," Pliny explains, "by enclosing earth within a frame of boards, ing or my cooperation," says the secretary, "they may be assured of them both."

Rammed-earth, according to Merrill, is a term describing "both the material and the process of wall building by which earth is tamped into the shape of a wall or building block. In essence, a compressed block or section of earth will, when tamped, assume the shape of the form into which it is pressed and, when the moisture dries out, harden into a permanent shape suitable for use as a building material."

The reasons set forth by Merrill as to why, if this method of building is so good it has not been widely adopted, are logical: One—there's no money in it, except the money saved by the builder. Two—contrary to the impression among sellers of building materials, Merrill insists it would help rather than hurt their business. The man who builds a rammed-earth house can't afford anything—door, roofing, plumbing—everything in fact except the walls, which are free except for the cost of the forms and the tamping.

Merrill's thesis is that anyone willing to acquire the rudimentary

NEWS REVIEW

GOP To Continue Probes; Boundary Dispute Looms

CONGRESS:

Busy Bodies

GOP congressional investigators prepared to dig deep into war expenditures and un-American activities with the full support of the first Republican majority in 16 years. Senate Republicans beat down an effort of the Democrats to transfer duties of the war investigating committee to the inactive committee on expenditures in the executive department by a 47 to 45 vote.

The watch-dog over efficiency of the war effort under President Truman while he was still senator from Missouri, the war investigating committee widened its scope under Senator Mead (Conn., N. Y.) to probe irregularities in munitions contracts. In the wake of disclosures of the close relations existing between congressmen and army officers with war contractors, the GOP voiced its determination to dig deeper into wartime dealings.

Not always in favor during the liberal New Deal administration, the house un-American activities committee promises to enjoy smoother sailing under the Republicans. Now headed by Representative Thomas (Rep., N. J.), the committee laid plans for an early probe of Communism in government departments, labor unions, Hollywood, and colleges and schools.

GERMANY:

Polish Claims

Should the U. S. oppose Polish claims to the 40,000 square miles of former eastern German territory taken over by the Poles under the Potsdam agreement, this country faces a stiff fight with the Russian bloc. With the U. S. bringing the full force of its prestige into play, however, it may secure modification of the Polish claim or cede out other concessions from the Reds.

Poland served notice of its determination to permanently affix the new territory to the deputy foreign ministers' meeting in London, called to lay the groundwork for the Big Four conference in Moscow in March to formulate a German treaty. Since given control of the territory at Potsdam, the Poles said they have moved 1,583,000 Germans out and 3,500,000 Poles in.

Nub of the disagreement lies in the Poles' contention that they were full way over the territory at Potsdam. The U. S., on the other hand, holds that they were merely given temporary administrative control, with the question of Germany's final postwar borders to be settled at a peace conference.

PORTAL:

Tax Relief

The burden of portal to portal back pay will largely be shouldered by Uncle Sam when, and if, union members are awarded their substantial claims against industry as a result of Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's announcement that such outlays are deductible against taxes levied in the years affected.

Because portal payments to workmen will be liable to taxation, however, the U. S. stands to recover some of the refunds in personal income taxes. In many instances, the portal claims run into hundreds of dollars per worker, leaving them open to a heavy bite under the high wartime rates.

Under Snyder's ruling that industry could claim credits on taxes paid in the years for which portal demands were granted, companies would be able to take advantage of high rates and excess profits levies of the war years. At the same time, they would be entitled to a 6 per cent interest on the money collected from them to cover their tax liabilities.

FOOD:

Enemy's Need

Declaring that the U. S. could not afford to permit the American flag to fly over a gigantic Buchenwald, former President Herbert Hoover undertook another survey of food needs in the U. S. and British occupied zones in Germany.

In addition to providing for essential German relief, Hoover's journey was aimed at making the relief as self-supporting in food needs as possible. Improvement in the food situation would lead to a reduction in present U. S. relief costs of 300 million dollars annually. The former president had the assistance of two food experts on his tour, being accompanied by Dr. Dennis Fitzgerald, chairman of the International emergency food council, and former Ambassador Hugh Gibson, who aided him in World War I relief work.

COMMODITIES:

U. S. Eyes Trade

In an effort to prevent serious breaks in commodities, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson announced that the department's commodity exchange authority would be freed of other duties to permit full time polling of the markets.

Anderson disclosed the move in the face of growing speculation. Remembering the big break in cotton last October and the alleged manipulation of butter prices in New York, department authorities acted to check future slumps affecting prices. Studies are being completed on the factors in the cotton break, with Anderson ready to ask for additional regulatory authority if warranted by the investigation.

No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Vets' Medical Service

In rounding out its medical service, Veterans' administration has announced arrangements have been completed to appoint doctors of osteopathy to serve in the VA's department of medicine and surgery.

Doctors of osteopathy, therefore, who desire to become affiliated with the department are asked to forward applications to the deputy administrator of the VA branch office having jurisdiction over areas in which the applicants desire to work.

To be eligible for appointment, doctors must be: (1) citizen of the U. S.; (2) hold a degree of doctor of osteopathy from a college or university recognized by VA; (3) have completed an internship satisfactory to VA; (4) hold a license to practice osteopathy in one of the states, territories or the District of Columbia; and (5) meet VA prescribed physical standards.

Questions and Answers

Q. My husband was dismissed from the navy under a general court martial. He was in bad shape when he was in the navy and was in several serious actions and we believe he was not responsible for his breach of the law for which he was court martialed. If we can show that he was not in his right mind at the time of his commission of the offense could he then get the benefits of the G. I. bill to which he otherwise would be entitled?—Mrs. R. C. Bilfoxi, Miss.

A. Yes, if it can be shown conclusively that your husband was insane at the time the offense was committed he could apply for all the benefits of the G. I. bill if he is otherwise qualified. Proof must be offered to the administrator of veterans affairs. The same answer would apply to conscientious objectors who refused to perform military service or refused to wear the uniform, or even to a deserter, or in the case of the acceptance of the resignation of an officer for the good of the service, if it can be proved to the satisfaction of the Veterans' administrator they were insane at the time of the commission of the offense.

Q. Does the government pay for artificial limbs required by amputees who are veterans of any branches of the armed services?—J. A. B., Ada, Oklahoma.

A. Yes, the law provides that Veterans' administration furnish the required artificial limbs or other prosthetic or orthopedic appliances of permanent type, and even special clothing made necessary by wear of such appliances for service-connected condition or for an associated disease or injury held to be aggravating the disability from a service-connected disease or injury. Also hospitalized patients and persons receiving domiciliary care have entitlement under the conditions above and in some cases where the disability is not service connected. Also retired officers and retired enlisted men of the army, navy, marine corps and coast guard who lost a limb through injury or disease incurred in line of duty in the military or naval service at any time also may be furnished artificial limbs. They also are entitled to fitting and training in their use.

Q. I am the wife of a World War I veteran and he has never drawn a pension. We have five children in school. Now he is disabled and has a blood disease caused from getting too hot in the drill field. He also has fallen arches caused from wearing hobnail shoes. Both are on his service record. He tried to get a pension several years ago but didn't get it. I want to know if there is any way we can get a pension as we are badly in need of it.—Mrs. E. G. F., Ellenville, Miss.

A. There is a regional office of Veterans' administration at Jackson and sub-offices at Greenwood, Hattiesburg, Meridian, Tupelo and Indianola. Your own chance is to present your case to your nearest office for a decision by VA. If your husband is totally and permanently disabled from non-service connected disabilities he would be entitled to about $50 per month and if he is 65 years old or older and his disability is total he would be entitled to a $50 pension.

Q. Our son is a disabled veteran and is taking vocational training under the law for that purpose and is in a city about 25 miles away from us. Can you tell us if he is entitled to any time off for vacation and, if he is, does his subsistence allowance stop while he is away?—Mr. and Mrs. D. A. W., Garden City, Fla.

A. Yes, he is entitled to a leave of absence not in excess of 30 days in any consecutive 12 months and is entitled to his subsistence payments during that time. He can get full details at school.

The Once Over by H. Phillips

FIRST ELECTRIC SHAVE

We just got our first electric razor. Patient and razor are doing well. We found it under the Christmas tree and regarded it with apprehension. People had been shaving with electric razors for years. We knew that. But we had never been much of a hand with machinery. Electricity, we had always thought, was okay in dynamos, transformers, etc., but not among whiskers.

We read the directions and thought of submitting the whole business to our attorney in case of damages. Then we thought of Napoleon, of Wellington, of Old Put, of Fremont and other brave men of history. We took the apparatus out of the box and cried—"Forward! Ours not to reason why! Ours but to plug and try!"

"First be sure the white dot is in the center of the dial," said the shaving orders. Dial? . . . Was this a radio or a razor? . . . Were we to get a shave or a quiz program? . . . Stand your ground, men!

We fixed the dot. We made the necessary connections. We plugged in. The thing was really almost noiseless, but to us it seemed as if we had just started two airplane motors and a gasoline lawn mower. We dropped everything and read the directions again. Then we called down to see if there had been any short circuits.

It was too late to quit now. We thought of the men at the Alamo and pressed on. Our face was unscathed. So was our beard. It seemed we had failed to remove the glass protecting cover from the business end of the apparatus. Life is like that.

We took this off and went to work again. On we went in the spirit of the 49ers and the men at Concord bridge.

Everything WORKED! The beard came off swiftly. Our face remained intact. In fact it came out a better face than when it went in. No blow-outs, no knobs, no backfires. Anybody want an old tube of shaving paste and a brush? Science marches on!

Down the Hatch

Dr. E. M. Jellinek, director of Yale school of alcoholic studies (which we assume tried to trace all unjustifiable threats to Harvard or Princeton), says there was more drinking in America in 1946 than ever before. In fact, the people consumed more liquor in nine months than they had in the previous 12. Maybe the Republican victory in November has something to do with it.

But Dr. Jellinek says that despite the fact there was more drinking, there was a decline in drunkenness. That is easily explained by the fact that the bars chisel on the drinks so much that it is almost impossible to feel any effect until after the sixth or seventh.

Can you remember away back when the last thing a working man squawked about was the preliminaries to starting work?

It seemed to us that President Truman was really saying in congress "Do as little as I suggest, Heaven forbid!"

constructed on either side. These walls will last for centuries, are proof against rain, wind and fire, and are superior in solidity to any cement. Even at this day (more than a century after Hannibal) Spain still holds watchtowers that were erected by Hannibal.

The idea of houses of earth is not incredible to Clinton V. Anderson, secretary of agriculture, who has written the preface to the book. "If Tony Merrill and his rammed-earth builders want either my blessing knowledge of building, can build a rammed-earth house himself with three bedrooms, spacious living, dining and cooking facilities and all plumbing and heating equipment for less than $5,000. He can build as good or better a dwelling than most of the so-called defense homes, so widely used during the war, for $3,000. And there are already modest cottages in a number of places which cost little more than a thousand dollars for two members of a family to build.

this had been printed in the record there would have been "laughter" after that one.) Another story claimed as the favorite of former Sen. Guy Gillette of Iowa and Arkansas' young son, William Fulbright is a true one. As Senator Gillette tells it, his colored maid had noticed that the senator, then a representative, had his picture in the paper. Underneath was a caption to the effect that he might be nominated for the upper chamber. "Is a senator higher than a representative?" the maid wanted to know. "Yes," Gillette told her, "they are so considered because a senator represents an entire state and a representative represents a district of a state." The maid's next question was: "Well, is there anything lower than a congressman?" Gillette is said to have been forced to imply that there was indeed nothing lower than a congressman.

Solons Have Laugh on Selves

When Bob Hope or Henry Morgan or even Senator Claghorn pokes fun at congressmen, that's supposed to be humorous. It's always open season on politicians in this country where people ridicule their public officials with gags instead of guns.

But it is not generally realized that legislators like to laugh, too—even when the laugh's on them. And at least one of them enjoys congressional jokes so much he's written a 350-page book about them.

Compiling the congressional Joe Miller may seem a far cry from steering policies of the senate judiciary committee, but Senator Wiley has been working on the humorous project since 1933 when he first was elected to the United States senate. Last year he got around to sending a letter to all his colleagues in the house and senate, asking them their favorite jokes. He was deluged with stories—good, bad and corny; and most of them jacked in or about congress and congressmen. All of which inspired the title of his book, "The Laugh's With Congress."

Under the title "The Women—God Bless 'em," he relates how in the closing and very literally hot sessions of the 79th congress, the then Sergeant at Arms Wall Doney ruled twice within three weeks that, although women in stacks could be permitted in senate galleries, women in shorts would be inimical to the dignity of the senate and were to be barred from the gallery.

All of which moved Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia to remark: "In hot weather, I am sometimes envious that I cannot wear shorts myself. Mr. Doney is supposed to be an authority on what creates confusion in the senate, but personally, I have no objection to shorts." (If

INCOME INCREASES

Farm Cash Receipts Hit Peak

WASHINGTON.—Farmers' cash income from livestock and crop marketings in 1946 soared to the record-breaking total of more than $1 billion dollars, according to a preliminary survey announced by the agriculture department.

The latest bureau of agricultural economics estimate places cash receipts at $1,100,000,000, the highest in history and a 18 per cent gain over 1945. Earlier predictions had forecast only $3 billion dollars, but high prices for meat animals, cotton, feed grains and feed crops following the end of price control boosted the earlier prediction by more than a billion dollars.

Receipts from livestock and livestock products were estimated at about $13,400,000,000, an increase of 14 per cent over 1945. Income from crops was placed at about $10,700,000,000, an increase of 18 per cent. Marked increases in returns from cotton, food grains and feed crops were largely responsible for the gain in the total crop receipts.
If the final accounting of cash farm income matches the preliminary estimate, cash receipts in 1946 will be 18 per cent over the previous year. The 1945 figure, a record up until last year, was $20,700,000,000. During the prewar years of 1935-39, cash receipts averaged $7,500,000,000.

Preliminary estimates released by the department indicate that cash receipts for December, 1946, were about $2,320,000,000, which is 20 per cent below the November total but 30 per cent above December, 1945.

LAST LOVER

By Helen Topping Miller

Twenty-five years have elapsed since the disappearance of Richard McFarlane in World War I and his wife, Julia, is beset with fresh worries as the children she has raised with the aid of her father-in-law, John I. McFarlane, 27, has "washed out" in the air corps while Jill, 26, falls in love with Spang Gordon, a young lieutenant. Julia condones her troubles to Dave Patterson, an old family friend who has always secretly loved her, and Spang goes to a dance and Jill discovers she is in love but is nettled when Spang apparently doesn't return her feelings. She acts gay, however, to conceal her own love from him.

CHAPTER V

Then abruptly Spang cleared his throat. "I've got something to tell your mother," he said, "and I'm worried whether I should tell her or not. Maybe you'll know what I should do."

"You mean—something about me?"

He broke off a head of goldenrod and examined the small sulphur-colored blossoms minutely. "No, not about you. You suit me fine. I've had a grand time, and I hope you'll let me come back again. If I'm not shipped out. No, it's about Ric."

"I suppose he's in some sort of trouble? That happens," she said stiffly.

"Ric and I were pretty good friends at college," Spang went on. "We lived in the same house, and though I finished two years before he did, we wrote now and then and kept in touch. Then this war came along, and I got in early and got my commission, and of course Ric was an enlisted man, so that complicated things. But I've managed to see him occasionally."

"And you don't like what he's doing? Is he ducking out of things, breaking regulations, that sort of thing?"

"I don't know about his service record. I haven't any contact in that direction. But the last time we were in town I saw him with a woman. They were both drinking, and though Ric wasn't tight, exactly, he was talking too loud. He wanted me to meet her."

"Did he salame properly before the shoulder-bars and the beautiful whipcord breeches?" Jill spoke more bitterly than she knew because her heart was hurting from disappointment.

Spang laid the gold-spangled leaf on top of her head. "Don't be nasty, gal. Can I help it if this army is all stiffened up with military courtesy and stuff? I still like Ric. That's why I don't like what I was seeing. She's older than he is, she's been divorced, her first husband was an officer who got kicked down stairs after Pearl Harbor. She's living there in the hotel, and a sergeant I know pretty well told me that Ric was seeing a lot of her. She's a handsome wench, one of those silver blondes with nice skin and a helpless look—you know the type. I have a feeling your mother wouldn't like it, but still I hate to say anything."

"But surely Ric couldn't get serious about a woman like that?"

"I don't know."

Ric Provides a New Worry

"You do know, Spang, more than you're telling me! I don't have to be protected from the truth, even if it isn't pleasant."

"No, I really don't know anything definite, Jill. I'm just worried, that's all, and since I've met your mother and seen the sort of home Ric has, it bothers me. It may be just another episode. Ric had a few when we were together."

"The trouble is," Jill said, "Mother spoiled Ric terribly. My father didn't come back, and I think she needed somebody to lavish all that love upon, somebody to keep her heart from breaking. I was just a good egg, somebody she could talk to, but Ric got her deep affection. And anything he does that's off-color would hurt her frightfully. I'd hate to tell her. After you're gone, I ought to do anything about it anyway, could you?"

"No, I couldn't do anything about it. Ric's a man, he'd resent any interference from me. He'd have a right to resent it. Of course he may be shipped out, and that will put an end to the affair."

"Then it is an affair?"

"Jill, I've told you all I know. I've heard her discussed in various places and heard the things other men say about her, that's all. I've heard men speak of her when they were talking without inhibitions. And Ric is pretty young—"

"Twenty-seven isn't so young. He's old enough to have a little sense," Jill said angrily.

They walked down the lane, saying little after that.

Maybe he wasn't going to say anything, maybe he didn't care at all, Jill was thinking, with the painful knot made of anger and tears growing hard and tight in her throat.

Spang talked of the future, presently, but of a future in which she had no part—or any other woman, he said. "A month from now I'll be looking back on this week-end, thinking of the wonderful time I've had—"

"And trying," Jill asked, her head tilted a little, "to remember how I look?"

He bent his head, and his eyes moved over her slowly and soberly. "I won't have to try. Hair like a new five-inch shell and a sassy nose—"

"Disposition like T.N.T.," Jill supplied, keeping to the airy mood, "hair-trigger set. If things don't happen when I want them to, I explode all over the place."

"No," Spang said quietly, "you aren't like that. When you go up against a thing you really want, you wait for it quietly, with considerable determination."

"Grim. Very grim!"

"Have you found anything yet that you really wanted and didn't get? Something you really wanted, I mean—not a whim."

Jill set her teeth. Was he trying her, trying to get past the rigid control of her chin and her care-

Julia's face changed, paled and grew taut. "What a ridiculous suggestion," she said stiffly.

ful eyelids? "When I find it I'll get it—some way, some time!"

"Desperate, eh?" Spang laughed a little. But the laugh was shaken, and so was the pressure of his hand on her elbow uncertain. "Your eyes don't give you away as a desperate female, at all."

"How do they look? Inane, I suppose?"

"Oh, sort of sweet—and melting. I think you'll find ways to get what you want without any fight."

So her eyes were melting! But they were melting, and if she hadn't more she'd be crying like a fool, because she was in love and men were so unbearably stupid!

She said coolly, "I've trained my eyes to lie very politely. Let's hurry, shall we? I smell the roast, and Mamma gets peevish if dinner waits on Sunday. She belongs to the Hollens Church and they have services in the afternoon."

After that the day wore on, her grandfather telling over again interminably the story of how Buzzard's Hill had been a military hospital in the Civil War, Julia trying to efface herself and maneuver John I. away so that Jill and Spang could be alone. Sweet of Dooley, Jill wasn't in love with her. How could he be and keep so carefully silent about it?

Thank heaven, when she put him on the bus at dusk, she hadn't let herself go, hadn't been careless about the way she had looked at him.

He had held both her hands when he said good-by, and she had promised to come down to the field again as soon as she could, and then he had given her a gay little salute and climbed aboard and been rushed away out of her sight.

A Talk Between Julia and Jill

The heat settled, drowsy and enervating as it pressed upon the world in August, and Jill grew a little wistful.

She tried gallantly to tell herself that the quiet life of Buzzard's Hill, she pretended an excited interest in the new pigs, though privately she thought the wriggling, hairless little things revolting, and thought what an amazing thing mother-love must be, that it could believe any new creation lovely.

She even put in a warm morning digging in the garden that was going sadly to weeds since Foster's man had gone off to the army. At night she went back to the house, naked in perspiration, a good natured sad rum, and every muscle screaming weariness from the unaccustomed activity. After that strenuous adventure she took a hot shower and flung herself on the bed, too utterly tired to go down to lunch.

Julia found her there and looked at her shrewdly. "You're taking this the hard way, Jill. I've brought you some cold milk. Drink it and go to sleep. You're being very gallant, but try to be reasonable about it."

"How did you hear that, Dooley. Life has to be for something or about something. Mine isn't. It's just a purposeless existence, just using up days. And there are so many of them, and they're so long!"

Julia dropped into a chair. She wore her heavy jeans, and she was warm and weary, too. "I know. You haven't had to learn yet how long years can be, Jill. I hope you never will."

"How did you hear that, Dooley, that last war? You aren't changed, you aren't old. You haven't any lines in your face."

"I had two children to take care of. And I had hope."

"And I," Jill said sadly, over the rim of the glass, "haven't anything at all."

"It turned out that way, did it? I didn't want to ask any questions."

"It turned out that I fell in love so deeply I was practically shameless about it. And to all appearances, Spang didn't. He liked my eyes, he thought you were a handsome woman, he said he had a good time, and then he talked about the job he had to do and hoped he'd see me again. If that's love, Dooley, what kind is it?"

"Perhaps the bravest kind of all. Jill. The kind a man keeps to himself because he knows he has nothing to offer a woman, nothing but uncertainty and dread and grief."

"Even those are better than nothing at all! You wouldn't know, Dooley, how awful nothing can be. Emptiness! Time going on. Oh, I know I'm talking like an idiot. I told you I hadn't any shame at all. Dooley, I want to go down to the field pretty soon. I want some new knockout clothes and one of those feather hair cuts and to have my eyebrows touched up. Why did I have to get these ferocious brows, Dooley, when yours are so delicate? You're a McFarlane, too."

"There were dark McFarlanes and red McFarlanes. I got a little from both strains. Your father was almost a blond. His eyes were blue."

"Blue eyes would be horrible with my hair. I could see Ric if I went down to the field, Dooley. That is, if he isn't shipped out somewhere. He won't get a furlough, you know, for ages."

"Do you think you really want to go, Jill? You know there is such a thing as being too eager."

"Oh, Dooley, they buried all that stuff with Augusta J. Evans! A nice girl would stick quietly at home to be wooed and won, but try sticking and see what it gets you, how beautifully you're stuck! I have to see Spang again before they send him off to Africa or some other hideous spot, or I'll curl up and die! And I haven't an inhibition in the world, but I do have sense. Nobody knows what a fool I am but you, Dooley. You've been through this waiting business. You know how it hurts."

Jill Offers A Suggestion

"Yes, I know," Julia took the empty glass, pushed Jill's damp hair back and patted her casually. "By the way, Dave just telephoned. He has bought a new saddle mare, and he thought you might like to try her out Sunday. He's going to bring her over."

"Did you enlist Dave to divert my mind, Dooley? Don't you know that I love Dave stuff?"

"Please give me credit for a little sense, Jill. I haven't discussed your personal affairs with Dave. And I don't like riding. I can't risk being lame and stiff, with all I have to do here."

"Why don't you fall in love with Dave?" she asked abruptly. "It would simplify everything."

Julia's face changed, paled and grew taut. "What a ridiculous suggestion!" she said stiffly.

"What's ridiculous about it? Dave's been in love with you for centuries—don't tell me you didn't know it! You must be blind. Even Grandfather suspects it. I observe his look whenever Dave comes around. He likes Dave, he'd be terribly pleased, I think."

Julia's frozen expression did not change except that pain crept into her face, darkening her eyes, making her mouth a wan line. "Dave is a gentleman," she said, evenly. "He would not fall in love with another man's wife."

Jill puckered her brows. "But, Dooley—twenty-five years! Just because Grandfather couldn't find any grave when he went over there—maybe my father is the Unknown Soldier. When you took us to Washington I pretended that he was lying there. I felt beautiful about it. It could be true, you know."

"We won't talk about it any more," said Julia, severely. "And please put ideas like that out of your head!"

BETTER put "Bedelia" on the list of new pictures that you mustn't miss; it has everything. It stars beautiful Margaret Lockwood, Ian Hunter, Anne Crawford and Barry K. Barnes, and the supporting cast, from Jill Esmond straight through, couldn't be better. Vera Caspary, who wrote the book, helped with the screen play—but "Bedella" is better than "Laura."

MARGARET LOCKWOOD

And if you don't like pictures that make you shudder, don't let that worry you—the suspense is beautifully handled, and it's distinctly not a horror picture. When a reviewer wants to see a picture a second time, it's good! "Bedella" is an Artur Rank production, released by Eagle-Lion.

RKO has another beauty contest winner on its hands; this one is Marina Kennedy, winner of the annual Irish beauty contest which eight years ago started Maureen O'Hara on the road to fame. Pat O'Brien discovered Miss Kennedy when in Ireland.

Regan Callals is the first television actress to be drafted to the screen, RKO signed her after she was discovered in a recent beauty contest in Chicago. She danced in night clubs in New York, Montreal and Atlantic City before going to Chicago to appear as an actress and dancer in the Patricia Stevens "Cover Girl" television show—so she seems like a natural for the movies.

In the movies it's an unwritten law that a screen hero mustn't either stoop or stretch to kiss a girl. If he's a bit on the short side he stands on a plank. If he's too tall for the girl she's built up. So, for her romantic scenes with tall Kent Smith in "None Prentiss," Rosemary DeCamp had to wear three-inch platform shoes. But it's Ann Sheridan who really sets a record—she kisses him 22 times. This is the picture in which James Wong Howe, one of Hollywood's most famous cameramen, makes his debut.

As a result of Ed Gardner's appearance at the National Press Club dinner he got President Truman's autograph on his apron. Gardner tried three years ago, at the Birthday Ball, but a bunch of Secret Service men interfered.

Lucille Wall, who plays an attorney in "Portia Faces Life," frequently gets letters asking her for legal advice. The other day she asked what to do about a parking ticket. "Pay the fine," wrote Lucille. "That's what I had to do."

After major studios had been bidding for them for seven years, James Cagney landed the screen rights to William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life"—it's the only play ever to win the Pulitzer and Drama Critics prizes simultaneously.

Too bad that Jack Parr, the comic, couldn't see eye to eye about his material for the Vaughn Monroe show; he and the advertising agency that had signed him on a six-year contract ran into difficulties, and now the deal's off.

Ozzie Nelson has to be very careful of the dialogue he writes for the radio counterparts of his young sons. They listen to the show, and if they don't like the lines they remark later. "Say, pop, we didn't sound much like ourselves today!"

While on tour for the "March of Dimes" Extra Stone and Jackie Kerk of "The Aldrich Family" had no trouble with bobby-soxers, but in every community they were mobbed by mothers. "And we loved it!" declared the air's Henry and Homer.

ODDS AND ENDS—William Frazerley doesn't have to worry about his wardrobe for "My Wild Irish Rose." Most of his scenes take place in a Turkish bath cabinet, and he wears a sheet. . . . Robert Stevens is called back from his honeymoon to play one of the chief supporting roles in "The Crime Doctor's Vacation" at Columbia. . . . Vincent Sherman has been directing "The Unfaithful" at Warner's with a very sore head; his garage door this down on it. . . . William Lloyd is an old-time screen star at heart, apparently; his new town and country car is named "Hopalong Cassidy"; he has the name on the door.

Kathleen Norris Says:

The 'Dear Woman Friend'

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

"Edie discovered to her consternation that Russ and Nancy were falling in love."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

EDIE'S marriage took place in the first months of the war, and has gone on the rocks. It isn't her fault, unless indeed it was a fault to marry a man she had known only a few weeks.

However, she was not the only girl to do that in 1942, and she and Russ had some happy months together, before he was ordered away to the South Seas. Edie settled down in her old home with her mother to wait for the baby; she did not see Russ again for almost four years. In the second of those years, her old chum Nancy came to board with her, and all three women adored and spoiled little Sonia. Edie and Nancy had good jobs; everyone was happy.

Then Russ came home, to find that, first, he'd earn less money than Edie, for a while at least; second, that his lovely little daughter didn't like him, and third, that he was more lonely at home than he had ever been abroad. Adjustments were difficult, and by the time they began to smooth out, Edie discovered to her consternation that Russ and Nancy were falling in love.

"I had never suspected it, I had never dreamed it," says Edie's heartbroken letter. "Russ and I had been talking of finding a little place for ourselves, but there was so little choice of places, his prospects were so uncertain, and my job still so absorbing that there seemed to be no hurry about it. To mother and little Sonia and me this time of reunion seemed heavenly. Then suddenly it all broke, and Nancy confessed that she and my husband were not only deeply in love, but that the baby she was expecting was his child. She was covered with shame and remorse but that was the situation, and what were we all to do?"

Nancy Manages Household. "A complication is that my mother has not been well, and Nancy, who is very capable, has been managing things at home and taking care of her, too. Mother has always been devoted to Nancy, and is shattered by this terrible revelation. Russ is sullen and silent. Nancy goes on about household duties with her face like a mask, and I feel frantic with despair. What on earth is the way out? If they have fallen in love, seeing each other every day as they have, living under the same roof, are they to blame? Am I to blame for going on with my 475 a week job, which with my mother's thousand a year is all we have? Surely it was not wrong to offer my friend a haven in my home, when she was widowed and heartbroken? I am an ordinarily nice-looking woman of 23, always neat and smartly-dressed, but not glamorous. Nancy is 24, tiny, very pretty, appealing. Please send advice for us all, they know I am writing you."

My dear Edie, I wrote her in reply, this is to one's fault; it is one more result of the supreme folly of war. That Nancy should be widowed so young was a direct result of war. That you and Russ should have been separated in the first important married years is another. That Sonia should not have known her father in her babyhood, that you should now be the curiously-

Nancy's unfortunate baby...

EVERYONE HURT

A letter to Miss Norris reveals one of the unhappy aftermaths of war. Edie married a man whom she had known only for a few months. He was away in service for four years. During his absence, a baby was born. Edie lived with her mother, who cared for the little girl while Edie worked at a well-paying war job.

Then Edie's old chum Nancy came to board with her. When Edie's husband was discharged, he had to come into the house with the women and the baby. He turned to Nancy for companionship, rather than his wife. Before they realized it, they were in love.

Finally Nancy had to confess to Edie that she was going to have a baby and that its father was Russ. Edie does not know what to do under these painful circumstances.

assorted family's chief bread-winner, and that the war here should be humbly hunting a job—all this is wrong. The doubled-up family works an injustice on you all. Things have become pretty hopelessly complicated, and only infinite patience and time can work them out.

And over and above all these unnatural difficulties, surely the rights of Nancy's child deserve first consideration; whatever happens, this unfortunate baby enters life heavily handicapped. To divorce Russ, to have him rush into marriage with Nancy, would only be to mix things up further.

She Knew the Risk. So my advice is, first, that Nancy get out. She was no ignorant innocent child when she surrendered to the delights of a flirtation with Russ. She knew that Russ was, and is still, the husband of her best friend, the husband of the woman who stretched out a hand to her in her loneliness and need. Exactly how she betrayed that generosity is something that the months to come are going to bring home to this unscrupulous little woman. If Russ goes away with her, as he well may, Edie is no worse off than before. It will give her time to breathe and to think everything over.

But Russ may not go with her. Russ is comfortable now in the old home, with his wife and child. Nancy is the outlaw, and Nancy will have to go to some city hospital, get a job in the kitchen or linen room, as women in her distressed circumstances often do, and give her baby out for adoption; any conscientious foster-parent will give it a better break than she can, and may she come back a wiser woman. And an honest one.

Love does indeed take a man and woman unawares sometimes. But not in this case. If Russ, still war-bewildered, uncertain, embarrassed by his joblessness and impetuosity, was weak in being flattered and companioned by this pretty little housemate, Nancy wasn't. She had no such excuse. She considered neither the rights of Russ, Edie, Sonia or the unborn baby. She thought of exactly one person—herself. That is always an expensive proceeding in these questions of a triangle.

INVISIBLE FLAME

Campers next summer will be able to cook hamburgers and coffee over an "invisible flameless" flame. At least, that is how Du Pont describes its new tablet fuel made from trioxane, a form of formaldehyde. The fuel, produced for the first time on a commercial scale, ignites instantly with a nonluminous flame that is easily blown out by wind. It was used during the war experimentally in the search for a fuel to heat field rations without disclosing positions of troops to the enemy.

Valentine's Day

If you get into a party mood around this time of year, one of the most festive occasions for a get-together can be on Valentine's Day. There are so many clever things you can do with food and decorations that it's just grand fun.

The occasion can be getting together with friends whom you like and hardly ever get a chance to have over. Or, if you want to honor an engaged or newly married couple the occasion is perfect.

Be as frilly as you like for this is a romantic day. Pink and white are your colors, and hearts your motif. Arrange furniture in pairs as much as possible to carry out the theme of the occasion, and for refreshments, select your sweetest dishes.

Here's a good menu for a simple supper party:

Ham a la King in Noodle Nest
Tomato Aspic
Heart Shaped Sandwiches
Devil's Food Cake
Beverage

You'll want to be certain to use pimiento to carry out the color scheme for this occasion, so make a memo to yourself to get a jar to use with this lovely-to-look-at main dish:

Pour into a well buttered or oiled ring mold and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 45 to 60 minutes until firm. Unmold and fill center with ham a la king.

1 1/2 cups mushrooms, fresh or canned
1/2 cup pimiento, cut in strips

Combine gelatin and water; let stand 5 minutes. Combine remaining ingredients except vegetables and simmer covered, for 15 minutes. Strain and pour over gelatin. Let chill and when partially congealed, add chopped, fresh vegetables. Chill until firm and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. Heart-shaped molds may be used.

Make a pretty devil's food cake for dessert, and frost with fluffy frosting. Use tiny red hearts for the design.

Devil's Food Cake.
2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups granulated or brown sugar
1/2 cup shortening
Milk
2 eggs, unbeaten
3 squares chocolate, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla
With butter, substitute or lard, use 1/2 cup milk. With vegetable or other shortening, use 1 cup milk.

Sift flour once, measure into sifter with soda, salt and sugar. Have shortening at room temperature; mix or stir just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients and add 1/2 cup milk and mix until all flour is dampened. Then beat 2 minutes, add eggs, melted chocolate, remaining milk and vanilla and beat 1 minute longer. Turn into two 9-inch layer pans which have bottoms lined with paper and greased. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 minutes.

This cake may be mixed by hand at low speed on an electric mixer. Count only actual beating time. Or, count beating strokes. Allow about 150 full strokes per minute. Scrape bowl and beater or spoon often while mixing.

Another type of party for this day may be made even easier. Use the tomato aspic with chicken or crabmeat salad, assorted sandwiches, and a heart shaped mold of ice cream served with little cakes carried out in the heart motif.

AROUND THE HOUSE

When it is necessary to carry a pair of scissors in your purse, stick the ends into a cork. This will hold the blades together and protect your purse from the points.

When buying new hosiery, mark each pair at the top with a few tiny stitches of thread. Use different colors for each pair. When washing several pairs at a time, there's no trouble matching them.

In making yeast bread, it is most important to avoid letting dough get too light or rise too long. Let it rise until doubled, but not more than doubled.

In soldering, remember that the metals to be joined must be heated to the melting point of the solder before it will "take" properly.

While slipcovers are still damp, iron just the flounces, then work the damp slipcover over the chair. Saves ironing and produces a better fit.

When doing embroidery work, wind thread on metal adhesive plaster spools. Insert in spool case and leave end of thread sticking out. In this way you can find the color you want without opening the spools. No more tangled thread, either.

"In Old Missouri"

(Editor's Note: This is another in the "Stories of the States" series.)
By EDWARD EMERINE
WNU Features

There's no place like Missouri—as any Missourian will tell you. Part northern, part southern, part eastern and part western, and wholly American, the "Show Me" state is a collection of individuals, climates, soils, industries and resources. "Build a fence around Missouri, cut it off from the rest of the world, and it will get along all right,"
is a boast often heard.

Missourians might be nearly right at that about their state being self-sustaining. Cut off from the rest of the world, they still could enjoy mountains, plains, rivers and lakes.
They could eat beefsteak, lamb chops, ham and bacon, fresh fish, fried chicken, fruits, vegetables and bread, and still have plenty of whipped cream, pie, cake, sugar, potatoes—Irish or sweet—oatmeal, butter and eggs. Their shoes would be made in St. Louis, and they would have a choice of wool or cotton clothing, straw or felt hats, light clothing or fur coats. Besides, they would have whisky, beer, wine, tobacco, corn-cob pipes and the Missouri mule. They might be short on gold and a few other luxuries, but they would have coal, wood, lead, zinc, iron, glass, clay, copper, nickel, cobalt, steel, antimony, tungsten, arsenic and some oil and gas.

Topography is diversified.
Topographically, Missouri is more a part of several other regions than a region in itself. Northern Missouri is a continuation of the rich, rolling farm lands of Iowa. Western Missouri is a part of the great mid-woods are thick, fruits and berries abound, and beneath the soil's surface are rich stores of minerals.

High in industries.
Although a rich agricultural state,
Missouri has a two billion dollar manufacturing industry even in normal years. Meat packing at Kansas City and St. Joseph, boots and shoes at St. Louis, men's and women's clothing in all the large cities, tobacco processing, airplane manufacture, book and other printing, and industries established to process the state's resources and raw products place Missouri among the ranking industrial states. Mining, lumbering, cement making, corn cob pipes

TYPICAL FARM SCENE... Modern farms dot the rich and highly productive rolling acres of Missouri. Here is shown the J. C. Penney farm near Hamilton.

continental prairie. Southwestern Missouri is part of the Ozark plateau of Arkansas, and flat southeastern Missouri is delta or bottom land characteristic of the lower Mississippi valley.
The state's diversity is even pronounced in its people. The quiet St. Louis business man is unlike the go-getter from Kansas City. The farmer in northwestern Missouri speaks a different language than the delta agriculturalist. And the Ozark people differ from all the rest. On one thing they all agree: Missouri is a great state! Missourians have a state pride as deep and fixed as any Texan's.
There are no deserts, no barren peaks in Missouri. Corn grows tall, and other products are important industries. Both Kansas City and St. Louis rank high as wholesale distribution centers for the entire Mississippi-Missouri valley. Flour mills and cereal plants at St. Joseph had a tremendous war output.

Missouri is one of the few middle states that yet markets trees, lumber, laths and shingles in large quantities, supporting more than 200 commercial sawmills. The state has the largest deposits of lead, zinc and coal in the Middle West. It also has valuable clay, building stone and sand. Missouri produces about 42 per cent of the annual production of baryte for the United States.
With its varied topography, Missouri has many scenic attractions.
It has more than 240 recorded caves, many with several floors and some with underground streams. Besides its many natural lakes, it has Lake of the Ozarks which was created by the Bagnell dam across the Osage river, built in 1929. This lake is 120 miles long with 1,300 miles of shoreline. Big Spring, with a measured daily flow of 640,000,000 gallons, is the largest in the world. All streams and lakes are stocked with fish, and the hunting of quail, ducks and other birds is widespread. The forests and hills of the Ozark mountains are nationally famous.

Spanned by Railroads.
Missouri is one of the leading railroad states of the nation, being served by 13 trunk line roads.
Agricultural products of Missouri include two and one-half billion pounds of beef annually; one billion pounds of pork; four billion pounds of milk; one million pounds of chickens; besides eggs, sheep, cotton, wool, corn, wheat, tobacco, soy beans and other crops.
From its rich historical background, Missouri has emerged as a friendly, hospitable state, a little more southern than northern in accent, a little more western than eastern in its ways.

LaSalle's explorations in 1682 located what is now Missouri as a part of the vast Louisiana purchase.
It was relinquished to Spain in 1762, returned to France in 1800 and purchased by the United States in 1803.
During the Civil war, Missouri, although a slave state, furnished 108, 773 troops to the Union and more than 50,000 to the Confederate army.

Many Historic Sites.
The state has many sites of historic and prehistoric interest. At many places are traces of Indian villages and camp sites. Indian mounds and earthworks are numerous. The old home of U. S. Grant, built by the general himself, still stands outside the city limits of St.
Louis. The boyhood home of Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens) is preserved at Hannibal, and statues of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn have been erected.
Missouri is known as "The Mother of the West." Inspired by reports of the Lewis and Clark expedition, a St. Louis Spaniard named Manuel Liza in 1809 organized the first of the fur trading companies. Jim Bridger, first white man to see the Salt Lake valley, was a Missouri fur trader. The Oregon Trail led from Missouri to the Pacific coast, and Independence, St. Joseph and other western Missouri towns outfitted the men who conquered the West. Eastern terminus of the Pony Express was at St. Joseph, and the Santa Fe Trail was blazed from New Franklin to the Southwest, with the Santa Fe railroad to follow later.
It was the "Missouri Compromise" act of congress that brought Missouri into the union as a state in 1821.
Born in turmoil, it has endured all the hardships of pioneering, insurrection, reconstruction and modern competition. Perhaps through the trials of generations its people have learned that a "show me" attitude is far safer than naive acceptance of things at face value.

LOYAL SON... Phil St. Donnelly, governor of Missouri, is a loyal son who "never bothered" to leave his native state. Born at Lebanon, Mo., March 6, 1891, Donnelly attended Missouri schools, practiced law in his native state, served as county and city attorney, and spent 20 years in the state legislature before being elected governor for a four-year term in 1944. He is married and has one son.

Would Risk It

The smiling, confident young man entered a New York bank. He stepped up to the manager's desk.
"Good day, sir," he announced.
"Has your bank any need of a highly intelligent, college-trained man?"
"What kind of a position are you seeking?" asked the manager.
"Well," mused the young man,
"I want something in the executive line. A vice-presidency, for example."
The manager put down his pencil. "I'm really very sorry," he said, sarcastically, "but we have twelve vice-presidents."
The young man waved a hand.
"Oh, that's all right," he stated, happily. "I'm not superstitious!"

Starvation in India

Throughout history, half of all deaths from starvation have been —and still are—among the Hindus of India, reports Collier's.
As their religion teaches them to sanctify and protect animal life, they not only allow monkeys, rats and other pests to eat and damage their crops, but also use much of their food to maintain animals in idleness, among them being about 100,000,000 head of cattle.
